When They Dive, 'Red' Grange Isn't There

"Red" Grange, probably the most outstanding individual star in the football firmament this year, is the hardest man on the modern gridiron to stop. This photograph was snapped just as Red was starting on his 80-yard run for the touchdown that tied the game with the University of Chicago. Two Chicago players dove for Red as he skirted the end, but he sidestepped them both. The men seen lying on the ground while Red is off on his sprint through the broken field. The angle of Grange's body indicates how he has sidestepped the last would-be tackler.

TOWNE ALKE "Just for Fun" By RAS BERRY

Mac Macdowell's boss sends him out to buy a doz. eggs the other a.m., and Mac comes into the Torrance Inv. office waving his arms, and declaring to all folks present that if eggs goes one cent higher he's going to construct a nest in the office and lay 'em himself.

If Mac laid 'em says J. C. Smith, they'd be hard boiled.

Down at the Wilmington Athletic Club the other night a bozo gets knocked for a row of abandoned oil wells and the orchestra starts playing Listen to the Mocking Bird.

The bus. mgr. is also bus. mgr. of the Legion show and is not only Scotch but a wise duke. He has to go to the Davenport Hotel Sunday to get the director of the play and drive over to Compton on business for the show only when he goes into the hotel he reads a sign that says the landlady is out and he don't know which room this here director is located in so when he spies a big bell that says on it ring in case of fire he gives it a ring and eighteen heads pop out of eighteen doors, including the head of this here director and the bus. mgr. says if that ain't using his brains why he ain't no lugs, mgr.

Well it begins to look like the wise football dopsters including Ras would have to go to work for their money now that the season is ending. This wk. it was Walter Renna who contributed, Walter liking Harvard against Yale. When it comes to picking winners in elections and football games, Walter is a pretty good grocer.

Geo. Peckham and Charlie Schultz was standing in line at a L. A. theatre to buy tickets. Kaddelike Charlie says to Geo. "See Why I left the office safe unlocked. That's all right says Geo. we're both here ain't we?"

The Legion show is going to be put on in Compton tonight. They is going to stage it in the boxing ring over there. That ought to make it a knockout.

Well, says Jimmie Hines, prez. of the State Exchange Bank, as he looked up from a long list of Monday morning overdrafts, it sure takes a tight-rope walker to keep his balance these days.

Quite a number of local hookups was presented with tickets during the campaign against speeders in L. A. Buy it in Torrance and save your fine money, say we.

News are scarce this wk.

Mrs. McKinley Is Hostess to Club

Mrs. May McKinley entertained the Afternoon Card Club with a luncheon Friday. The guests were seated at small tables which were jointly decorated in yellow, the centerpiece being a large yellow rose holding a yellow candle, while the covers were marked with small roses holding candles. After a delicious luncheon the tables were cleared and Five Hundred was enjoyed. Besides the regular club members, Mrs. E. A. Blanchard of Springfield, Mass., Mrs. Romaine Shaw, Mrs. Frank Zuber, Mrs. S. Doss and Miss Rena Nutty of Los Angeles were invited guests.

Miss Neelands Is Hostess Wednesday

Miss Joana Neelands entertained fourteen of her young friends Wednesday evening at the home of her parents, D. and Mrs. W. J. Neelands on Gramercy avenue, in honor of her fourteenth birthday. The evening was passed with games, and refreshments were served.

RESPONSIBILITY AND FLIRTATION By FRED M. ESSIG

Flirt In life and love, in citizenship and in Christianity, it is the same old story. A few men and women have sense and soul enough to acknowledge and accept their responsibilities. The rest are "flirts." A flirt is one who wants the pleasures without paying the price. This country is full of flirts. It is running over with folks that shirk or dodge or avoid their portion of the world's burdens.

Life In life we find an army of men and women and children with the philosophy of the flirt, "something for nothing" is the cry of the hour. The highways are lined with men and boys and occasionally a woman with their hands stuck out. "Give us a ride" is ringing continually in the motorist's ears. "We want a ride, but we don't want to pay for the ride. Oh, yes, we have centare or busfare with us, but we want to spend that for ice-cream or booties."

"The world owes me a comfortable living" is the motto for today. Yes, my friend, you are right. That is, you are half-right. The other half is "And I owe the world a life."

Are you living your life for others, or just yourself? Are you accepting the responsibilities of life? Or are you just flirting with it?

This is for those between fifteen and fifty. Love is a problem in arithmetic. Joy plus Responsibility equals Love.

Too many folks are trying to find love without adding the responsibility to the pleasure. And they find that the answer they get is not love but passion or prostitution or more problems. In either case there is sorrow and misery.

Be wise. Love always has meant responsibility. And it always will. Flirtation never has brought anyone any lasting happiness.

Are you really in love, or are you a miserable flirt?

Citizenship An honest-to-goodness American is a responsible man. He is proud in our traditions. He is proud of our country. He is proud of our constitution.

And he accepts the responsibility of perpetuating our traditions and our patriotism. And he becomes responsible to honor our country and our constitution.

He can't afford to "let George do it." He votes. He is interested in city, state and national affairs. He knows that if he would have good government he must pay the price—effort, thought and action.

The community flirt is the man who neglects his share of law observance and enforcement. He is the man who is not interested in the city welfare, or the election, or the soul of the nation.

Are you a responsible citizen or a selfish flirt?

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH? By Dr. W. F. Thompson

When reading or writing—A pamphlet or folder, Get light from the left, And over the shoulder.

When we raise the dust we raise the death rate.

The only fear that should concern us at all is atmosphere.

When school noses tingle their microbes'll mingle, which starts 'em all sneezing again.

The tale that one hears Is not like it sounded, As most of our fears Are wholly unfounded.

That wayward son who drove his indignant dad into the grave killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

Thermometers will tell how hot but not how moist your room is. The hygrometer does both, and moisture is more important than heat.

Fear is a funny fellow: He scares us to death by whispering "Leprosy!" that's not highly infectious; then lets us play poker with tuberculosis, that is.

It doesn't matter where we ramble, it doesn't pay to stop and gamble. With dirty milk and dusty fruit; Nor does it pay to pet the poodle That has rabies in his noodle— There's the Pasteur Institute.

The germs of leprosy and tuberculosis are so much alike that they could easily be mistaken for each other. Leprosy is a rare cause of death; tuberculosis is a common cause of death. We fear leprosy; we don't tuberculosis.

While the prompt administration of antitoxin has robbed diphtheria of its danger to life, prevention by immunization robs diphtheria of its victim.

From the extravagant and unsupported claims made by those who have glands for sale, we'd say that their gall glands have reached a high state of development.

While the reduction in the death rate due to communicable diseases has been remarkable, the death rate to dietary indiscretion has increased alarmingly.

Twelve Turkeys Will Be Given Away Tonight to Movie Patrons

WHAT'S ON AT TORRANCE THEATRE

Tuesday — Fred Thomson and his horse "Silver King" in "The Silent Stranger." Felix the Cat, Christie Comedy. Wednesday — No picture show. The American Legion farce-comedy "10,000" will be presented at the theatre. Thursday — Matinee at 2:30. "PAY DAY" event at night performances. Bebe Daniels in "Dangerous Money." Sennett comedy, News.

Tonight at the Torrance theatre the second flight of twelve live turkeys, donated by the merchants of Torrance, will be given away. In addition, the Ferncroft Cafe has made a twenty-pound cake, worth about $25, which will also be given away.

The photoplay entertainment consists of Fred Thomson and his horse "Silver King" in "The Silent Stranger." Thomson is well liked among local movie fans, and his remarkably intelligent horse is as well known. Felix the Comical Cat will be presented. A Christie comedy completes the bill.

Wednesday night there will be no picture show. At 8 o'clock the American Legion will present its riotous farce-comedy, "10,000." The cast is made up of local people, and there will be a chorus of local girls, as well as some special musical numbers. Proceeds of the play will go toward the erection of a clubhouse for Bert S. Crossland Post No. 170 of the American Legion.

Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, there will be the usual holiday matinee. In the evening the "PAY DAY" event will be carried out as usual. Bebe Daniels' starring vehicle.
